Women's, Transgender, & Queer Studies Major

The number of courses required for the major is 10 (30-32 semester hours). The women's, transgender, and queer studies (WTQS) program is an interdisciplinary major that engages feminist, Indigenous, transgender and queer lenses to understand, analyze and transform interconnected systems of oppression. Through intersectional and reflective approaches, we examine gender inequalities, gender identities and gender expressions, sexualities, race, socioeconomic class, disabilities, immigrant status, LGBTQ+ issues and health disparities at local, national and global levels.
